Currently, I am in my 9th semester studying integrated design at Anhalt University of Applied Sciences in Dessau, Germany. For my thesis project I am interested in transferring the tradition of the journeyman years onto the design craft. Due to its practic nature I want to test and evaluate the concept myself to implement a solid project. If you are interested in talking about this further, just give me a hint.

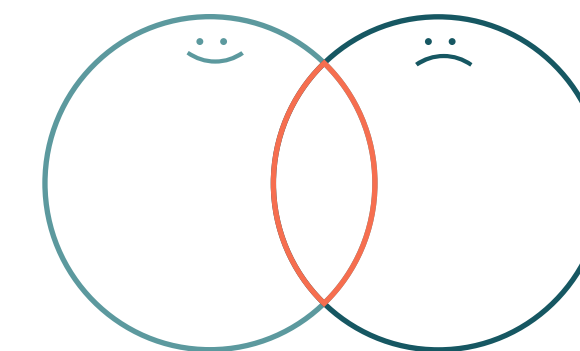

I teach myself front end development at the moment and experiment with programming different websites. When on campus I am likely found in the universities workshops or realizing spontaneous, funny or serieous ideas with friends until late in the morning. Oh, and I want to learn how to dj.
